Dear Sir / Madam

Exemption of Health and Social Care Organisations from the rise in Employer National Insurance Contributions (ENICs)

We are writing to you as members of the Voluntary Organisations Disability Group (VODG) - the membership body for disability charities, bringing together organisations from across England and Wales delivering advocacy, care and support for disabled people.

Last week, the House of Lords voted in favour of Baroness Barker's amendment to the National Insurance Contributions (Secondary Class 1 Contributions) Bill¹, which seeks to maintain current ENICs levels for charitable providers of health and care, thereby exempting charities from the increase proposed in the Budget.

When the NICs Bill returns to the House of Commons, we are seeking your support for this amendment, to avoid the devastating impact the ENICs increase will have on the care and support we provide.

As you will be aware, the Employer National Living Wage will soon increase by 6.7%, an increase we welcome in better rewarding our valuable care and support staff. At the same time, the change to Employer National Insurance Contributions (ENICs) will add significant costs to an already stretched wage bill.

Without an exemption or the necessary uplift in fees, we are facing an extraordinary challenge to deliver essential frontline services in the ways, and to the quality, we are committed to.

While there has been investment in social care following the Autumn Budget, the funding available continues to fall far short of what is needed to ensure disabled people, families and carers are able to access the support they need.

Independent analysis by Cordis Bright, commissioned by VODG finds the cost of the Autumn Budget to VODG members alone, to be at least £266m a year². More widely the Association of Directors of Adult Social Services anticipate a shortfall of £1.4bn for adult social care in 2025/26, just for services to standstill³.

Fees paid by health and social care commissioners have long failed to keep pace with rising costs, before this additional burden was introduced.

Looking to 2025/26, local authority and ICB commissioners are already telling us they will be unable to meet the increase required – many are offering less than the required uplifts with some saying there will be 0% uplift in fees. This means some services will soon become unviable, unless a solution is found.

Disabled people with lifelong conditions have very clear legal entitlements to care and support. The vast majority, without their own private assets, rely on local authority and health commissioners to fund the support they need.

Organisations like ours deliver these services on behalf of the state and we are wholly reliant on public sector funding to deliver public sector services. The vast majority of our costs are for our staff, who we rely on to deliver essential care and support. Any unfunded increase to our wage bill, either through rises in the NLW or ENIC, poses a perilous risk to the services so people we support rely on.

As an MP seeking to ensure the best care and support for disabled people in their constituency, we are keen to work with you to ensure disabled people locally and across the country can access the support they need, in the way and place they choose.

We would be very grateful if you could consider taking the following actions:

1. Write to your local council leaders seeking assurance that 2025/26 fee rates paid to the voluntary sector will be set at rates that cover higher future workforce costs, including uplifts to the National Living Wage and ENIC. We would be grateful if you could share a copy of their response.
2. Write to Ministers and the Treasury to ensure the full costs of care and support are covered, including the costs of commissioned services delivered by third sector providers.
3. Support the amendment by Baroness Barker when the National Insurance Contributions (Secondary Class 1 Contributions) Bill comes back to the Commons. This effectively exempts health and care organisations from the detrimental impact of the proposed increase.
4. Agree to meet with VODG and a small group of local VODG Chief Executives to discuss the impact of NICs and the detrimental impact on the support disabled people, families and carers rely on if action is not taken.

Only by prioritising the provision of high-quality support for disabled people of all ages, will we have a fairer society where disabled people are able to live the lives they choose. We stand ready to engage with you further, to provide information, examples, draft parliamentary questions and briefings.

Yours sincerely,

Rhidian Hughes, Chief Executive, Voluntary Organisations Disability Group (VODG)
